Tips for High Altitude Baking

- Reduce the amount of baking powder or baking soda in your recipes by about 1/4 to 1/2.
- Increase the amount of liquid in your recipes by about 1/4 to 1/2.
- Bake your goods at a lower temperature than usual. For example, if a recipe calls for baking at 350 degrees Fahrenheit, bake it at 325 degrees Fahrenheit instead.

- Bake your goods for a shorter amount of time than usual. Check for doneness a few minutes before the end of the recommended baking time.
- Use a baking pan that is slightly smaller than the one called for in the recipe. This will help to prevent your baked goods from spreading too much.
- Let your baked goods cool completely before frosting or decorating them. This will help to prevent them from falling apart.
