Geological Marvels

Moon Banff National Park is a testament to the Earth's dynamic forces over millions of years. The park's landscape was shaped by colossal glaciers, which carved out deep valleys and created towering mountains. These glaciers also left behind a series of shimmering lakes, including the iconic Lake Louise and Moraine Lake.

One of the most striking geological features of the park is the Canadian Shield. This ancient rock formation forms the foundation of the Rocky Mountains and is characterized by rugged cliffs and exposed granite surfaces. Visitors can witness this geological wonder at sites such as Sulphur Mountain and Parker Ridge.
